Winter Travel Tips

Driving

Make sure your vehicle is ready for driving in the winter. Have you had a winter safety check? Do you have a blanket and bottled water in case you get stuck?

Before travelling you need to ensure that you have cleared all of the snow off your vehicle, including the roof. We suggest using an indoor broom for the extra reach but without the scratching you'd get with an outdoor one! Make sure your lights are lean and visible and wait for the windscreen to clear completely before setting off.

Electric Cars in Winter

Did you know that electric cars are less efficient in winter?

Actually, that is less and less true as technology improves. The AA estimates that current Electric Vehicles are only slightly less efficient in winter than in summer, much like with a petrol vehicle.

Cycling

The most important things for cycling in winter are to make sure your bike can handle the varying conditions and that you are visible and warm.

Make sure you check your brakes and you may want to consider if your tires are suitable for riding in rain and snow. Make sure you use hi-visibility clothing, bag covers or reflector strips and that you have lights on your bike.

Don't forget to layer up! Wearing many thin layers means that you can take some off if you get too hot, don't go for your warmest, biggest coat.
